

The APA Central Section Presents: Adapting to COVID: Reclaiming the Streets through a Tactical Urbanism Approach

"Pecha Kucha Happy Hour"

Pecha Kucha is a fast-paced presentation style, where presenters share short, fun, and entertaining PowerPoints with slides moving forward automatically every 15-20 seconds.

Thursday, April 8, 2021 5-6 p.m.

REGISTER HERE - FREE

(AICP CM CREDITS PENDING)

Panelists:

- Casey Lauderdale, City of Fresno
- Ricky Caperton, City of Clovis
- Jaylen French, City of Modesto
- Rob Terry, City of Reedley
- Ryan Johnson, Alta Planning + Design

Tactical Urbanism is a creative, hands-on approach of using flexible, low-cost, and short-term projects to advance and catalyze long-term goals related to neighborhood building, community attachment, street safety, and public space. Examples include:

- Parklets that accommodate temporary outdoor dining in parking spaces outside local businesses
- Painted mural crosswalks at busy intersections that illustrate traffic-calming and complete streets applications
- Potted trees and flowers in community-painted pots that provide shade
- Temporary enhancements to bus stops that showcase community character
- Other imaginative solutions led by neighborhood residents that support the built environment and community vitality.

Central Section
American Planning Association - California Chapter

